BILLY'S CELEBRATION.

BY JAMES SEYMOUR.

(Copyright, 1904, by K. M. Whitehead.)
Daisy slammed down the lid of her typewriter desk suddenly. It had been especially trying day. Mr. Cartaret had been as disagreeable as only the head of a firm can make himself, and she was so out of sorts that she did not even smile when Jimmie, the elevator boy, came upon Jimmie, the elevator boy, and she found Billy Teller waiting at the door she tried to pass without speaking.

"What's the matter, girls?" he asked, and he caught up with her and fell into step.
"Go away," she said crossly. "I don't want ever to speak to a man again."
"Not even me?" demanded Billy in a surprised tone. "I'm not the head of a firm."

"Don't you ever be such a horrid thing," said Billy, laughing as she slipped her arm through his. "It's been an awful day, and I never knew a man could be so disagreeable."

"I don't seem to be in line for head of a firm," said Billy, looking at her. "I don't know this morning if he could raise the money to pay me, and he said I'd be lucky if he didn't have to cut my wages."

"What did you say?" she asked anxiously.
"I supposed the election would be a good excuse for a cut as any other," said Billy, looking at her. "I don't know this morning if he could raise the money to pay me, and he said I'd be lucky if he didn't have to cut my wages."

"I was dismissed, too," she said. "I don't seem to be in line for head of a firm," said Billy, looking at her. "I don't know this morning if he could raise the money to pay me, and he said I'd be lucky if he didn't have to cut my wages."

at the box office," declared Billy. "Try to get in for the last act where the villain's crazy wife kills him and three choir boys—it's great."

"I'll be there," said Cartaret laughing. "Such intellectual joys are not to be despised. And if you will permit—" he ended with a glance at Daisy, and leaned over to whisper something to Billy. "Sure!" was the hearty answer, and Cartaret rose to return to his office.

"What did he whisper?" demanded Daisy, as they again turned their attention to dessert.
"He says," answered Billy gravely, "that the job he wants me for needs a steady married man, and I told him I thought I could fix that."

SOCIETY

Miss Kate Williams, daughter of Hon. P. L. Williams of this city, is the proud possessor of the Newhouse trophy, for a year at least, in the finals yesterday at the Country club she eclipsed Mrs. Copp and the trophy was handed over to her, amid the congratulations of many admiring friends. Should she be able to win next year, as her friends think she can, she will then own the trophy. It is a magnificent silver tea service of five pieces and one that would grace the afternoon tea table of any hostess. Miss Williams is a splendid tennis player, and, although the others in the several tournaments have shown great skill at the game, she has distanced them all. The last game of the season was played yesterday, and the fact that it was played on a day caused a large attendance, and the afternoon was a complete success.

Mrs. and Miss Sadler have returned from the East.

Mrs. Downey delightfully entertained at an informal afternoon yesterday.

The informal tea given Sunday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Rookledge in honor of Dr. and Mrs. McInerney was a thoroughly delightful affair, about a dozen old friends meeting for the evening and, after a dainty menu, enjoying a pleasant evening.

The ladies of Unity circle will give a Kensington tomorrow afternoon at Unity hall, from 3 to 5 o'clock. During the afternoon Mr. Fish will read "In a Balcony," in preparation for the dramatic presentation of the poem to be given at Unity club next Monday evening by Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Kelsey and Miss Grace Della Davis.

Mrs. R. E. Provost of Pittsburg, Pa., Mrs. S. Slick and Mrs. H. A. Hurd of Grand Junction, Colo., make a party which is enjoying a few days' visit to Salt Lake.

Miss Della Davis will return today, after an extended visit of several weeks duration.

A Halloween party by the ladies of the First Presbyterian church is one of the events that is being anticipated with pleasure by members and friends of the church. It is one of a series of "adventurous parties," to be given on Friday evening, October 28, the proceeds to be added to the new church fund.

Miss Mona Thompson, who has been visiting in the East for some time, has decided to take a course in vocal instruction under Madame von Klenner of New York, and will be away for several months.

Mrs. Ferguson was hostess at a most enjoyable dinner party last evening, given in honor of her mother, Mrs. Sharp. Covers were laid for twelve.

Mrs. Antoinette Berry will return to her home at Alameda, Cal. on Saturday morning, after a three-months' visit with friends in this city.

Dr. A. D. Melvin has returned from Arizona, where he has been for several weeks past.

Mrs. Fritz Miller and the Misses Blanche Miller and Ruby Heide left on Monday evening for St. Louis and Chicago.

Mrs. K. O. Kovee of 1054 Brigham street is entertaining the Misses McFall of Shoshone, Ida.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Buckle were pleasantly.

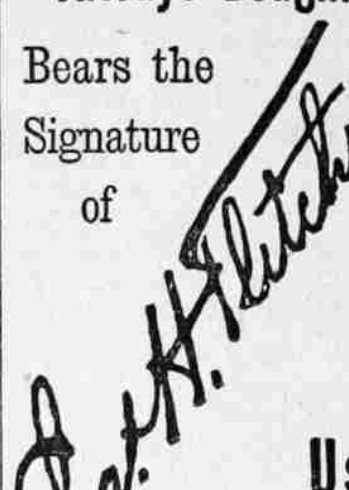

Letter Delivered Fifteen Years After It Was Mailed.

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 24.—While carpenters were tearing down the wall-scoring in an old postoffice building here they noticed a letter drop from its hiding place bearing a stamp of the two-cent green series with the portrait of George Washington. The letter was addressed to "Miss Daisy Walker, Cherry street, Toledo, O."

TO THIN PEOPLE.

VALUABLE INFORMATION Given by Druggists Druehl & Franken.

Druggists Druehl & Franken give the following advice to those who want to gain flesh, and it should be of value to everybody in Salt Lake City.

"Thin people, surest and safest way to gain flesh is to take Vinol, our cod liver oil preparation, and the reason that Vinol is so far superior to anything else is because it does actually create new flesh, and all of the medicinal, curative elements actually taken from genuine cod liver oil preparation, and being so rich and so pure as to be of great value to the system, and so sure as we are of its value, we will return the money paid for Vinol in every case where it fails to create flesh."

DOUBLE ROMANCE RESULTED

Wealthy Farmer Not Only One to Profit From an Advertisement.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 24.—A happy sequel to a successful newspaper advertisement developed in Limestone township.

Three years ago James McKee, a wealthy farmer, advertised for a wife, and Miss Dodson of Plymouth answered the ad. and was accepted. At the McKee home William Dodson, the brother of Mrs. McKee, who a year ago came there on a visit, was married to Miss Stella Bross, a niece of Mr. McKee's, whom he met on his first visit.

Now Dodson is both the brother-in-law and nephew of McKee; his niece is also his sister-in-law.
